

Contents

- vii Contributors
- xi Preface
SAMİM AKGÖNÜL
- 3 GENERAL INTRODUCTION:
Reciprocity and its Application in International Law
SAMİM AKGÖNÜL
- 31 PART ONE Sources and Meanings
- 3 1 Sources of Reciprocity: Treaty of Lausanne
SAMİM AKGÖNÜL
- 45 2 Reciprocity in Turco-Greek Relations:
The Case of Minorities
BASKIN ORAN
- 77 3 Reciprocity in the National Paradigm
HERKÜL MİLLAS
- 127 PART TWO Historical and Legal Perspectives
- 129 4 Reciprocity or International Intervention?
Greek and Turkish Minority Policy, 1923-1930
DİMİTRİS KAMOUZİS
- 163 5 Reciprocity as a Regulatory Pattern for the Treatment of Greece's Turkish/Muslim Minority
KONSTANTİNOS TSİTSELİKİS
- 191 6 The "Internalization" of Reciprocity By Many Members of Greek-Orthodox and Turkish-Muslim Minorities: How Can it be Explained?
Some Initial Reflections
DİMOSTENİS YAĞCIOĞLU

441 PART THREE Application

443 7 The Concept of Reciprocity and its Significance for the Political Organisation of the Muslim Minority in Greece

VEMUND AARBAKKE

461 8 A Victim of Reciprocity:
The Greek Patriarchate of Istanbul

ELÇİN MACAR

481 9 Reciprocity and Minority Religious Institutions in Greece and Turkey

SAMİM AKGÖNÜL

525 Index

EDITED BY

SAMİM AKGÖNÜL

Historian and Political Scientist, Samim Akgönül is an Associate Professor at Marc Bloch University of Strasbourg and a Researcher at French National Centre for Scientific Research. His work has focused on religious minorities and he has conducted case studies on non-Muslim minorities in Turkey, Muslim minorities in the Balkans and “New minorities” in Western Europe.

CONTRIBUTORS

VEMUND AARBAKKE

Born in 1957, Vemund Aarbakke is a lecturer at the Department of Political Sciences, Aristotelian University of Thessaloniki. He holds a MA in Balkan Studies from the University of Copenhagen and Ph.D. in History from the University of Bergen. His thesis focused on the question of the Muslim minority of Greek Thrace (2000). Dr. Aarbakke has worked as a researcher at the Chr. Michelsens Institute in Bergen; Centre for Middle Eastern and Islamic Studies at the University of Bergen; International Peace Research Institute in Oslo; and Institute of East European and Oriental Studies at the University of Oslo. He is the author of the book Ethnic Rivalry and the Quest for Macedonia 1870–1913 (2003), as well as several articles on modern Balkan history and politics.

DIMITRIS KAMOUZIS

Dimitris Kamouzis graduated from the Department of Turkish Studies of the University of Cyprus in 2000. With the financial support of the Alexander S. Onassis Foundation, he completed in 2002 his MPhil (B) in Ottoman Studies at the Centre for Byzantine, Ottoman and Modern Greek Studies of the University of Birmingham. He is currently a PhD candidate at the Department of Byzantine and Modern Greek Studies at King's College London and a scholar at the Alexander S. Onassis Foundation. Under the supervision of Dr. Philip Carabott, he recently submitted his PhD thesis, titled “The Constantinopolitan Greeks in The Era of Secular Nationalism, Late 19th Century to 1930.”

ELÇİN MACAR

Associate Professor Elçin Macar is a graduate of –Istanbul University, Department of International Relations. Dr. Macar teaches at Yıldız Technical University, Department of Political Science and International Relations since 2000. He specializes in the issue of minorities of Turkey and Greece.

HERKÜL MİLLAS

Born in 1940, Hercules Millas was raised in Turkey and currently resides in Greece. He holds a Ph.D. degree in political science and a B.Sc. in civil engineering. In 1968-1985, Dr. Millas worked as a civil engineer in several countries. In 1990-1995 he contributed to the establishment of the Greek Literature Department at Ankara University, and in 1999-2005 he taught Turkish literature and history at a number of Greek universities (i.e., Macedonian, Aegean, Athens).

He translated twenty books, mostly Greek and Turkish poetry and published ten books and many articles on Greek-Turkish relations, focusing on the interethnic perceptions, stereotypes and images.

Dr. Millas received the ‘Abdi İpekçi Peace Award’ twice – in 1992 and 2001, the ‘Dido Sotiriou’ award of the Hellenic Authors’ Society in 2004, and the ‘Freedom of Thought and Speech’ award from the Turkish Publishers Association in 2005.

BASKIN ORAN

Born in 1945 in İzmir, Turkey, Professor Oran has been discharged in November 1982 by the Military Government while serving as an assistant professor at the Political Science Faculty of Ankara University. He returned to the university following the court ruling in 1990. He became a Professor of International Relations in 1997 and requested voluntary early retirement in 2006 from PSF where he still lectures.

Professor Oran is the author of the famous “Minority and Cultural Rights Report” in 2004 and 15 other books on international relations, minorities and nationalism .

His main interests are nationalism and minorities, state-religion relations, Turkish foreign policy.

He has been the Head of the International Relations chair at Ankara University (1998-2006) and also the Natinal Liaison Officer to ECRI, Council of Europe since 1999; Commentator, SBS Radio, Australia (1999-2006); a columnist at the weekly publication Agos and weekly Radikal İki; and a Member of the Prime Ministry’s Consultative Committee on Human Rights since 2001.

KONSTANTINOS TSITSELİKIS

Konstantinos Tsitselikis, born in 1967, is an Assistant professor at the Department of Balkan, Slavic and Oriental Studies, University of Macedonia (Thessaloniki, Greece), lecturing human and minority rights and international law. He has worked for the Council of Europe, the OSCE, the UN, the EU in human rights and democratisation field missions. Dr. Tsitselikis is a Member of scientific groups and research teams on minorities, human rights and democratisation. He is the Co-director of the Series of Studies of the Research Centre of Minority Groups at Kritiki publishers (Athens) and the author of a series of books, articles and studies on human rights, international law and minorities.

DİMOSTENİS YAĞCIOĞLU

Dimostenis Yağcıoğlu, PhD, is a conflict resolution specialist and has worked for the Program for the Education of Muslim Children (PEM), in affiliation with the University of Athens.